As young students we are ever aware of changes going on in the climate. We make decisions of how we affect it, positively or negatively.
We consume media, food, air, information, lessons from school, health care, almost everything in the world. In a consumer-based society we are a major piece in the puzzle of world consumerism.
We are learning about the economy and affecting it by purchasing things, and getting our own jobs.
Technological development, Social development, Economical development, Law development, Ideological development. Youth have always been a major part in changing social norms and developments.
We affect the environment by own garbage choices and our choises on whether to buy locally or foreign. Knowing about Canadian and World environments is something that will eventually affect our desicions.
